

Review Men's 89kg

- Artem Okulov (RUS) won seven world championship medals in the men's 85kg between 2013 and 2015, including two world titles in 2015 (Clean & Jerk and Total). He added world titles in the Total and Clean & Jerk in the men's 89kg today.
- Okulov has now won most world championship medals in categories under 90kg among men from Russia (excl. Soviet Union), nine.
- In the Snatch, Arley Mendez Perez (CHI) took the gold medal, adding to his three world titles in the men's 85kg last year. Mendez Perez was already the only male Chilean lifter to have won a world title.
- Pavel Khadasevich (BLR) won his first career medals at world championships, a silver in the Snatch and in the Total.
- Hakob Mkrtchyan (ARM) finished second in the Clean & Jerk after winning the men's 77kg (Total) at the 2014 Youth Olympic Games and the men's 85kg Clean & Jerk at the 2016 European junior & Under 23 championships.
- Revaz Davitadze (GEO) took bronze in the Total and won Georgia its first medal at the world championships in Ashgabat.
